Self storage businesses are permitted to operate during lock down. They provide storage for customers in essential services including health care, emergency services and food distribution. They also provide storage for businesses that are still permitted to operate such as online retailers and tradespeople. People working in these industries will need access to their goods and hence it is essential that these stores remain open.

Strict separation procedures are in place where no person will come within 2 metres of another and protective screens and face coverings are in use. All retail functions have ceased and thorough hygiene and cleaning procedures are being completed regularly.
